POLITICAL GOSSIP AT CAPITAL PLACES CONNER IN LEAD

Marked Difference in Reports as to Situation. Conner Regarded as Candidate Using Battle Axe on Russell and Franklin. Raleigh Debate Puts Stock High. No Coattail Riding This Year.

Jackson ,Miss., June 14.—Jackson is talking about a great many things but the race for governor and other state offices is beginning to take form and is provoking more discussion of politics than the Capital has experienced for many months. Jackson being the seat of the State government is naturally a sort of reservoir for the politics of Mississippi. It is centrally located and men and women gather here on business, some for one thing and some for another, hence it is no trouble to find one who is ready to "tell you just how it is where I have been."

But in this respect, there is a marked difference in the attitude of people now and even thirty days ago. Then it was a very common thing to hear one say, "Well, the people seem very little interested, and there are but few who seem to have decided on a candidate." The knowing ones generally interpreted the apathy as existing because the candidates, outside of Bilbo, were somewhat new factors and as having no real leadership in the State. These same "knowing ones" were rarely ever heard to say that they wanted "a non-factional man," but on the contrary, it was easy to ascertain that most of them wanted what is frequently termed "a scrapper." Certainly this is true of the faction or element that elected Hubert Stephens last year and who seem to be in the ascendant in the politics of the State today.

Conner's friends are claiming, and there is much apparently to back up their claims, that he is gaining rapidly and that he is now the leading man in the race and they are bold to assert that this comes about because of the fact that Conner is the only man using a battle axe on Russell and Franklin. It is claimed by Conner's friends that he has taken many of Whitfield's friends in Jackson during the past thirty days, and they will give you name after name of men who have switched in their preferences. The Whitfield men deny this, yet there is an apparent uneasiness among them about what Conner is doing.

Bilbo seemed to stampede the friends of Franklin for about the first ten days after he got on the stump, but it is asserted that Franklin has rallied his supporters, and that there is more fume and fuss about Bilbo's candidacy than votes. From what sifts into Jackson, it appears now to be safe to state that Franklin's vote will far exceed Bilbo's.

All the candidates are on the stump and "telling it to the people." Whitfield's friends claim that the school girls and the school men and women make him a safe bet, but this claim is met by the Conner forces with the claim that Conner will poll fully half of the women vote and that the business men of all classes of the State and the real fighters who have been battling against Bilbo and Russell and that element for years are behind him. The Conner-Franklin debate at Raleigh sent Conner's stock way up, and from what one will readily pick up, Conner is being fought harder than any other candidate, a thing which his friends assert shows that all the other candidates dread him.

The candidates for the minor State offices are hot-footing it, but the coat-tail riding of a few years past is markedly absent.

RURAL CARRIERS ADOPT RESOLUTIONS

Be it resolved that the Fourth District Letter Carriers' Association expresses its thanks and appreciation to the Hon. Jeff Busby for his very excellent address on "The Development of the Postal Service."

Be it further resolved, that the thanks of the Association be extended to Rev. W. E. Farr, Hon. A. M. Carothers, and Postmaster J. H. Spence for their efforts in making our meeting a success.

Be it further resolved, that the thanks of the association be extended to Mr. H. B. Miller, Jr., for conducting the question box, which was both interesting and instructive.

Be it further resolved, that the Association extend thanks and appreciation to the rural carriers and other employees of the Grenada post office, the business men of Grenada, and Mr. T. L. Densmore of the Grenada Hotel for the courtesies extended, hospitalities shown and the excellent dinner served.

Be it further resolved, that this Association heartily approves the Ketcham equipment allowance bill and hereby instructs its officials to so notify our Congressmen that it is our desire that they use every effort in supporting this bill.

Be it further resolved, that this Association is not in favor of the adoption of a uniform for rural carriers, but is in favor of a hat or cap emblem.

Be it further resolved, that this Association extend its thanks to D. M. Taylor for his interest in and devotion to the interests of the members of this Association.

Respectfully submitted,
C. C. FELTS,
JNO. W. PEARSON,
L. L. DOLLARHITE.

TOM MOTEN HORNER

Sheriff D. W. Dogan went to Columbia Monday morning to carry Master Tom Moten Horner, who had been adjudged by Judge J. G. McGowan, at the instance of the boy's mother, as a proper subject for the juvenile reformatory located in that town. The many friends of this excellent family hope that the school may be just the place for Tom Moten and that when he comes back, he will be a sure enough man in every respect.

HAVE YOU REGISTERED SINCE JANUARY 1?

If You Want to Vote You Must Register. Time Up July 6.

The Sentinel has repeatedly advised that the board of supervisors ordered a new registration and that all voters of Grenada County who expext to participate in the primaries must have registered since Jan. 1 and on or by July 6. This applies to everybody. Only a few, comparatively, of the women of Grenada have registered. Why not register, ladies? The ladies in other communities are registering and in Pontotoc and Tippah Counties they are very nearly registering the babies.

UNUSUALLY COMPLETE IS OVERLAND RED BIRD

Nothing has been omitted from the necessary and convenient for the motorist who demands something out of the ordinary and who at the same time does not want to plunge into reckless extravagance in having his list of equipment made standard on the Overland Red Bird, but what is ideal satisfied.

Included in the equipment are bumpers front and rear, wind shield wiper, scuff plates, door grips, spare rim and tire carrier ,beside the usual dash light, speedometer and other accessories.

Glistening nickeled radiator with bar cap ,nickeled head lamps, wind shield stanchions, outside door handles ,scuff plates and back curtain frame are admirably set off by a khaki top with red bindings and welts.

Red Spanish grained upholstering leaves a pleasant impression when blended with the superb and rich, gleaming Mandalay Maroon, a shade that is exciting much interesting comment, affording to the eye ,as it does, a delightful sense of sprightliness, artistically subdued to a tone of agreeable refinement.

The Red Bird has a roomier body, riding on a lengthened wheel base of 106 inches and a spring base of 136 inches. This specification alone insures extremely comfortable traveling at all times and under the most adverse conditions. When the patented triplex springs, adopted by Overland engineers, are further considered, it will be readily understood that restful riding is one of the many outstanding merits of this new car.

Straight side Fisk cord tires, 30 by 3½, are also standard equipment on the Red Bird, enhancing its value to the purchaser and adding to his motoring satisfaction.

The engine is larger and more powerful and in every way adapted to maintain that far-reaching reputation of creditable ,economical performance gained by the Overland motor. Speed, flexibility, quick pick-up and low cost operation are established and proven facts.

The Red Bird has a one-piece differential case of great strength.

There are no bolts to work loose and no openings for faulty assembly to throw halves out of alignment through dirt or other foreign matter working in between the halves. The design permits of two unusually large differential pinions.

The ring gear is exceptionally large, of the spiral bevel type and with the accurately cut pinion runs smoothly, quietly and wthout trouble or need of adjustment for many thousand miles of service. Particularly noteworthy is the substantial, well assembled, strong rear axle assembly with axle shafts 1½ inches in diameter.

The axles can be removed without dissembling the housing and all the bearings are of the highest types known. These features together with the many estimable points of excellence in mechanism, single out the Overland Red Bird as deserving of discriminating favor

GRENADA COUNTY TAKES FORWARD STEP

Farmers Showing Desire for Better Cows and Herds Being Greatly Improved. Illinois Central Development Bureau Co-operating. Raising Own Feed and Taking Proper Care of Cows the Main Things to Do.

1923 is making itself busy welcoming the "Mother of Prosperity—The Dairy Cow." Grenada County farmers have shown more desire for better cows and have improved their farm herds more already this year than in the last five years.

Talk may do in Congress, or in the law courts, but a farmer to succeed must work—work with his hands and with his head. A successful farmer is a combination of professions, any one of which would make a mere merchant tremble to consider.

Dairying is a profitable type of farming—when properly handled. This is the matter many Grenada County men are mastering this year. "Properly handled" means, practically speaking, better cows (every one a money maker), better cared for (plenty of feed, dry barns, gentle handling).

Early in the year, the Illinois Central development department ,through Mr. H. J. Schwietert, general development agent, and Mr. Ben Coleman, agricultural agent, urged more dairying. They showed how such farming would build up the farms, would make the lands more fertile, would put more money in the banks, as deposits of the farmers, and hence would enable the farms to show a profit from the cows directly as well as to allow of larger yields of cotton per acre, following dairying practices.

Mr. J .T. Thomas, president of the Grenada Bank, saw the good to come from this movement. To add impetus he volunteered to reduce the interest rate on loans for dairy cows and to assist every farmer who was willing to put in, AND CARE FOR, better dairy cows. In addition, he agreed to see that the railroad agricultural men had means of transportation over the county in their trips to advise and help the farmers.

The county agent and the editor backed the movement from the first, giving of their time and space toward helping out.

Mr. Schwietert said that he would see that a development department man was in the county as much as needed for the success of such a movement. For a few weeks plans were made for obtaining high producing cows. This culminated in the shipping of between 90 and 100 cows into the county through the spring. These cows were chosen by the farmers who were familiar with cows, by the county agent, and the Illinois Central agricultural advisor.

After arrival of these cows, trips have been made through the county regularly, visiting the herds, discussing problems with their owners, and urging better and better care. Plans for more feed raised at home, more enough for the greatest production, than enough for the coming winter, have been outlined. Rations which may be entirely raised at home, and which are as good as mill feeds, are in the hands of farmers, or in their minds.

Mr. Schwietert sees far into the future. Forestalling the problems of the farmer, he has asked co-operation with him in building a prosperous community by dairying. Mr. Schwietert knows from experience the soundness of the idea. He has made it work in Iowa, on his father's farm. He has seen it bring Wisconsin out of the hills and stumps, since his service with the Illinois Central into the wealthiest farming state in our union, per capita. He has introduced dairying into the poor sections of Illinois, to see it bring the farms from under mortgages. This within the past ten years

Mr. Schwietert and the Illinois Central began 12 years ago pushing the dairy cow to the front in Mississippi. Not a section which ever took it up but is more prosperous. Not a one but has clung to it. At the beginning there was but one creamery in the entire state. Last year there were 12, and a number of towns about ready for new ones.

In Grenada County now there are not more than twenty farmers who are making the most of their cows. They are making a profit every month in the year, in cash. They learn every day facts which enable their cows to return larger net returns. They have money in the bank and they are raising their feeds for the coming year; they are following the doctrine, "live at home," and live better. From this is seen the small number actually dairying. Think where the county would be if every farmer had from five to ten cows, each cow making him $10.00 a month, and allowing him time for other crops.

Where the cow is kept and cared for, civilization advances, lands grow richer, homes grow better, debts grow fewer. This has been proven so often it remains as a maxim. Think of the people of Sweden, who have shipped to them Mississippi cotton seed mill over to their cold, uninviting country, feed it to their cows and ship the butter back to this country for sale. Their farms are prosperous and they are rich.

Professor Van Pelt says feeding is the greatest single problem to master. Get plenty of it and let no cow want for it.

Grenada County may have a colony of Soldier farmers in a short while. The U. S. Veterans' Bureau, which directs their training, requires that each man have a certain number of dairy cows.

Grenada County business men have agreed to put in a creamery, in connection with the farmers, as soon as this seems warranted. It takes 500 dairy cows at least to support a creamery so it will return a profit. There are not more than 200 right now. By 1924 Grenada County should have a sufficient number warranting a creamery. Raise your own feed, and care for the cows. Make the step ahead a long one, and a balanced stride that leaves a print for time to come.

THINKS DRAINAGE LAWS SHOULD BE MODIFIED

Dr. J. W. Young, Highly Respected Grenada Citizen, Gives Reasons Why He Thinks Present Laws Unfair and Unjust. Says Candidates Should Let It Be Known if They Are Willing to Vote for Modification.

Grenada, Miss., June 12, 1923.
Editor Sentinel:

As citizens and taxpayers, I think we have the right to know how candidates stand on matters of prime importance to all taxpayers. The last legislature enacted some very foolish laws, and some that bear very heavily on some of the people in some parts of the state, without their knowledge or consent. I speak more especially of the drainage laws. Under the present law, a few men get together and form a drainage district, regardless of whom it hurts, and whether or not any man in this district is in favor of the project. They organize, and employ engineers, go ahead to dig the ditch at an enormous cost, and proceed to assess every land owner in proximity to this ditch, without his knowledge or consent, to help pay for it. They go ahead and advertise in local papers, which a non-resident never sees, and this non-resident knows nothing of it until he comes to pay his taxes, then he is politely informed that he owes several hundred dollars drainage tax, in addition to his state and county taxes. A case in point: I am the owner of a farm in Carroll County. Certain men down there, who are occasionally bothered with high water, concluded to dig a ditch. They proceeded to advertise in the Carroll and LeFlore County papers—which I never see. Had I known about it, I should have strenuously objected, because I did not need it and did not want it. I rented my farm out two years ago and it was understood that the renter was to pay state and county taxes—which he did. He did not send me my tax receipts for two years; and, in addition to state and county taxes, there were included receipts for drainage tax amounting to $454.00. This was the first information I had that I was in a drainage district. A law that will thus permit a non-resident to be imposed on in this way is unjust, unfair and inequitable. This drainage tax and the necessary repairs about a farm cut so deep into the rental that it doesn't pay 2 per cent on the investment, and yet taxes keep piling up, up.

I am writing not only for myself but for others, by request, and what we wish to know is whether or not our candidates for the legislature are willing to vote for a modification of the drainage laws in order to protect those who do not need or care for a "ditch." All laws should be based on the old democratic idea: "Equal justice to all, special privilege to none."

I am, sir,
Sincerely and respectfully,
J. W. YOUNG.

WOMAN'S CLUB TAKES IT UP.

Wants One Half Day's Closing in Grenada.

The Woman's Club of Grenada has interested itself on getting the business houses in Grenada, where possible, to close for one afternoon through the summer or up until Sept. 1 or Sept. 15. The club bases its request largely upon the idea that nobody will suffer any business loss and that it will be best for all employes and on the further fact that the half day closing proposition is being observed by many of the leading towns of the State and of the Nation.

FRED PASS BACK HOME.

Graduated at Washington and Lee University.

Fred Pass was in Grenada this week. He graduated only recently from Washington and Lee University, Virginia, with distinction, and has been offered some prominent business connection in the east. Fred is remembered as the son of the late Col. A. S. Pass, and as a bright, polite and accommodating boy. The Sentinel hopes that his every ambition may be realized. He will spend some time visiting his mother at Tillatoba before going back east.

SULLENS AND CAMPBELL MAKE ADDRESSES AT COLLEGE

Jackson Editor and Boyd Campbell, Former Grenada Citizen, Delivered Greatest Addresses of Religious Meet. Dr. Norman Richardson Preaches Splendid Sermon. A Fine Gathering of Leaders.

Among those brought to Grenada by the Sunday School training school and the few days' conference preceding it, none was more appreciated than Capt. Frederick Sullens, the able ,talented and widely known editor of the Jackson Daily News, and Mr. A. B. Campbell, also of Jackson.

It is to be regretted that the coming of these gentlemen was not better advertised. There were but few, outside the immediate circle of those connected with the church meet, who knew that these gentlemen were on the program until the afternoon they were to be here; indeed, there was hardly any one in Grenada who knew of Mr. Campbell's being on the program at all. Had it been generally known that these men were to make addresses, a much larger delegation of the citizenship of Grenada would have been on hand. Grenada never had a more popular school head than Boyd Campbell. He married a Grenada girl and there is hardly any one that the community feels a more generous interest in than Boyd Campbell, and many of his closest friends really regret that more of them did not have the opportunity to hear him. He is one of Mississippi's coming men.

Of Mr. Sullens it may be very correctly said that he is perhaps the best known newspaper man in the State. He has made the Jackson Daily News a paper that is a terror to some people in high places. He has made of it a newspaper that upholds the banner of a crucified Lord and one that tries every day to put the things of God first. Those who do not enjoy a personal acquaintance with Mr .Sullens recognize his great ability. Thus it is that The Sentinel regards it as unfortunate that it was not better known that he was to make an address in Grenada, as there would no doubt have been quite a large number even from the country round about to hear him.

M. Campbell's theme might be termed, "Selling the Sunday School" to the church membership. Or, in other words, getting the church membership to realize that the matter of learning the Bible is one of the biggest pieces of business that could engage the attention of men and women; getting the church to realize that the only way to learn the will of God as to His dealings with humanity is by studying His revealed word. Mr. Campbell presents any question that he undertakes to handle cogently and convincingly and he was particularly fortunate in his address.

Capt. Sullens did not make his address until that night, and followed a forty minute speech by another gentleman, hence did not get started until a little past 9 o'clock. His theme was "Soul Saving," coupled with his religious experience since he, to use his own language, was "born again," now a little more than twelve months ago. Mr .Sullens said that he knew a man could be born again because he had had the experience. As one of the many evidences of a new birth, he stated that he had a different view of many things, among them his relations with his fellow-man, his duty to his community and the manner of conducting a newspaper. He said that the Christian ministry could not take the teachings of Christ and show them to everybody and it was getting to be more and more realized that if men and women who have not been regenerated are to be saved, that the laymen must take a decided and more prominent part in that great work which was really the first duty of church members.

Mr. Sullens makes a clean, clear-cut and vigorous address. He makes no pretence at oratory or eloquence. He uses good English and he couples his words and sentences together in an easy manner and in a way to add greatly to the force and persuasiveness of what he is saying. He is desperately in earnest and no one who will sit under the sound of his voice can fail to realize that he is sincerely trying to carry the flag of his Savior.

Dr. Norman E. Richardson, of Chicago, who was on the program of the training school last year, was back again. He filled the pulpit at the Methodist church Sunday morning, using as a text, "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." Dr. Richardson said that if one is to judge by what seems to be enthroned in the life of the Nation today and by what seems to be that which every community is paying the most homage to, he will conclude that the world is thinking not in the terms of the Savior, and, that it is paraphrasing that Scripture thus: "Blessed are the go-getters for they shall grab the earth." While he said that he was not a pessimist yet he stated that he would be false to the duty he owes his Maker if he did not say that there are many things happening in the life of America of the darkest forebodings. He plead for the people to think less in terms of making money ,of honoring the moneymaker simply because he is a money-maker ,and more in terms of the Sermon on the Mount.

Dr. Richardson stated in one of his class lectures at the College that it had come to him that some in this part of the country had got the idea that he did not believe in the atonement and that he was teaching an aesthetic religion. He said he was surprised at this, and stated in most convincing language that he believed that the atonement and the divinity of the Savior of mankind was the real bedrock of religion.

The Training School met every expectation of its promoters and came to a close Thursday.

MASONS PLAN BIG RALLY JUNE 25

Hon. Weber Wilson to Make the Address.

The Masons of Grenada are planning a big rally for St. John's Day, June 25, at which time Hon. Weber Wilson will deliver the address. Mr. Wilson is one of the orators of the State and a treat is in store for all who hear him. A full announcement will be made next week.

MEEK MOTOR COMPANY TO CLOSE ON SUNDAY

Without intending to pass judgment one way or another on the fact that some garages remain open on Sunday, The Sentinel desires to commend Mr. T. H. Meek, proprietor of the Meek Motor Co., for his announcement to close his garage every Sabbath. The Bible states that the Sabbath day is a holy day and that all work should be refrained from. It is a matter of conscience with Mr. Meek and this paper believes that every step in the direction of literally following the teachings of the Bible deserves commendation.

BERNHARD-BILLUPS.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Billups announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Charlie Moorman, to Mr. Louie Paul Bernhard, of Earle, Arkansas, formerly of Grenada, the wedding to take place at the home of the bride's parents the latter part of June. No cards.

PAYNE-WILLIAMS.

Mr. and Mrs. Van W. Williams announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Julia, to Mr. Leonard A. Payne of Water Valley, Miss., the wedding to take place Sunday, July 15th, at the home of the bride's parents in Grenada. No cards.

BURT-M'KAY.

A wedding that is of interest to many friends of the couple in this section occurred on last Sunday, when Mr. William H. Burt made Miss Orene McKay of Philadelphia, Miss., his bride, the ceremony taking place at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. R. Moreland, at Philipp and being performed by Rev. J. A. Warren, Presbyterian minister at that place.

Mr. Burt, who was reared in Duck Hill, is well known in Grenada and [illegible] young man of the highest integrity [illegible] highly esteemed by all who know him. He is noted for his industry and attention to business and possesses all the qualities necessary [illegible] a good husband.

His wife is an exceedingly charming young woman and is loved by all who know her. Her husband should count himself fortunate in having won her heart and hand.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt will make their home in Philipp, where the groom has been employed for several years in a mercantile concern. The Sentinel extends congratulations and best wishes.

BARR-GROSS ENGAGEMENT.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Gross of Carthage, Miss., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Annie Mae, to Mr. Elmer P. Barr of Osborn, Ohio.

Miss Gross graduates from Lincoln Memorial University this summer. Mr. Barr has been an instructor and athletic coach there for several years.

The above ,taken from the Middlesboro, Ky., Daily News, is of interest to Grenadians for the reason that both Mr. Barr and Miss Gross have been elected to places in the city schools here for the coming session, the former to be principal and athletic director, and the latter to have charge of the Home Science department. The Sentinel feels sure that the townspeople will join in extending congratulations to the couple, and will give them a most cordial welcome when they come to Grenada

CALHOUN COUNTY

The Best Hill County in Mississippi

Calhoun County, Mississippi, is located 100 miles South of Memphis in North-Central Mississippi. The county has three wide-awake Railroad towns, Calhoun City, Derma and Vardaman, which are situated on the Mobile and Ohio Branch Railroad out of Okolona. The County site is located at Pittsboro, a town 7 miles North of Calhoun City, and surrounded by the fertile lands of Scoona river bottom. The population of the County is: 17,500 whites and 2,800 colored; only one foreign-born citizen in the County. The people are honest, hospitable, energetic and progressive and extend a warm welcome to all honest people who locate with us.

DESCRIPTION OF LANDS.

150,000 acres of level, alluvial fram land, made up of river and creek bottom soil, as rich and productive as the famous Mississippi Delta soils and adaptable to any kind of crops. This land is priced far below the average price of Mississippi lands and is two-thirds lower than the price of Delta land.

220,000 acres of ridge lands that are richer in their poor spots than the best land in a half-dozen Mississippi counties; unsurpassed for grazing lands and upland farming.

This land can be bought from $6.00 to $50.00 an acre, depending upon improvements and situation, and, in most cases, may be purchased upon reasonable terms and long-time payments.

DRAINAGE.

About 100 miles of drainage canals are already completed in Calhoun County, and others are contemplated. Practically all River Bottoms have a complete drainage system with all needed lateral ditches and most of the larger creeks are canaled. These canals offer for cultivation thousands of acres on which crops can be depended upon every year. They have done away with overflows, and have reclaimed the low, swampy tracts, which are now the richest and most productive of all our lands. The land in these drainage districts is being rapidly placed in cultivation and the crops that are produced upon it are astonishing.

AGRICULTURE.

Our lands are adaptable to any kind of crops, due to an exceedingly fine climate and the richness and variety of the soils. At present the main crops are: Corn, cotton, lespedeza, peas, sugar cane, sorghum, peanuts, soy beans, velvet beans, oats, garden truck and all kinds of legumes.

CORN—The county never fails to grow enough corn to take care of its needs, and prepare hogs for the market, and in normal years, a great deal of corn is shipped to other markets.

COTTON—Owing to the fact that lespedeza has proved a more profitable crop for the past number of years, cotton has not been grown in this county extensively. However, last year 3,500 bales were produced in the county and was sold for more than $400,000.00. A number of farmers in this county made from ¾ to a bale of cotton per acre in 1922.

LESPEDEZA—Calhoun County is the home of the lespedeza industry; it produces the best lespedeza in the South. This is a very profitable crop and is produced with little labor. A full crop of oats and lespedeza can be grown from the same acreage; and lespedeza re-seeds itself. It furnishes an abundance of hay, producing two crops of hay each season, in addition to the crop of seed which is harvested at the last cutting. The sale of seed is an important item in this county, shipping figures showing that the seed alone brings into the county from $75,000 to 100,000 per year, depending on the crop conditions. The seed crop for 1922 sold for about $4.00 per bushel.

In order to show what can be done with this crop when properly managed, Mr. M. A. McCay, of Pittsboro, kept a record of his lespedeza crop in 1922, which is given below:

On 8¾ acres of land sown to lespedeza and oats, he produced 112 bushels of lespedeza seed, bringing him about $448.00; the hay brought $100.00; Oats, (on the same acreage) 242 bushels, which sold for $217.80. This 8¾ acres brought him a total of $765.80—almost $100 per acre.

There are thousands of acres of land in this county that will do equally as well, if properly worked and managed.

OTHER CROPS—Last year's stock peas shipped from this county brought about $40,000. In 1917 sorghum syrup shipped from this county brought in as much, or more. Many other products from the farm are shipped away in substantial amounts.

LIVE STOCK.

HOGS—Calhoun County has always been a hog-producing center. A great surplus of hogs are produced on the farms and shipped to the St. Louis markets. These hogs are practically all standard breeds, and many herds are of the finest pedigrees. They are produced at a minimum expense because of the abundance of grazing lands and running water. More than $50,000 was brought into the county in 1922, (a poor year for hogs), from shipments to St. Louis.

CATTLE—About $40,000 is brought into the county annually from cattle grown here and shipped to the markets. Cattle are produced at a very slight expense.

POULTRY AND EGGS—Poultry and Eggs are one of the never-failing industries on our farms. $125,000 worth of chickens and eggs were shipped from this county during 1922. An extensive campaign is now being conducted by the County Agent which will double these figures in the course of a few years.

OTHER LIVE STOCK—Mules, sheep, goats, horses, etc., are grown here. All of them are produced on a scale in excess of the county's needs, and are shipped in small quantities annually.

CO-OPERATIVE MARKETING.

Calhoun County has one of the best and most active county Agents in Mississippi with a co-operative marketing system that is unsurpassed. Co-operative shipments under his supervision and direction bring into this county hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. A live and growing farm bureau is in operation and is buying for the farmer co-operatively the things that enter into the production of his crop.

TIMBER.

Hundreds of thousands of feet of logs and manufactured lumber are being shipped from this county annually, giving employment to hundreds of laborers and enabling farmers to clear the idle lands with the funds derived from the sale of timber.

ROADS.

More than 60 miles of trunk line Highways are now under construction in Calhoun County. One million dollars are being spent on these roads, all of which sum is now available. Federal Aid to the amount of $500,000 has been donated this county for this purpose. A part of these roads have already been constructed and all will be maintained by the State Highway Department without cost to the county.

SCHOOLS AND CHURCHES.

Calhoun County people believe strongly in education, as is evidenced by a fine Agricultural High School located at Derma, doing a great work, and a number of other first class High Schools, some of which are affiliated with the State Colleges. There are also 19 separate High School districts in the county, which levy an additional tax to the State School Fund allotted them in order to employ better teachers and have better schools. Five of these schools are Rural Consolidated High Schools, with school cars and wagons for transportation of pupils.

The most of the churches are either Methodist or Baptist, although there are a number of Presbyterians in the county. Our citizenship is composed largely of church-going people, who are active church members.

CLIMATE.

This section of Mississippi is ideal so far as climate is concerned. Eight months of the year are so mild that green grass grows in wild profusion, making grazing of stock a profitable industry. All kinds of fruit is produced here with little attention to the trees.

CITIZENSHIP.

A 100 per cent American people, whose forefathers were the pioneers who claimed the South from the wilderness. The people are kind, courteous and friendly; every stranger who comes here is made welcome by the business men, bankers and farmers. We want YOU with us.

OPPORTUNITIES.

Now is the time to become a citizen of Calhoun County. When the vast improvements now under construction are completed, the values of the land and property here will make a sweeping advance in price. Now is the time to get in on the "ground floor" and make the coming advance pay you profits. We have a field here for any avocation or profession; there is room and opportunities for you. Investigate the resources, the limitless possibilities and come to Calhoun County—The coming County of Mississippi.

Whereas, L. P. Cummins on the 19th day of April, 1919, executed a certain deed of trust unto J. M. Windham, Trustee, for the purpose of securing the payment of certain indebtedness therein mentioned to W. M. Miers, said deed of trust being filed for record in the office of the Chancery Clerk of Grenada County, Mississippi, on the 1st day of May, 1919, and being duly recorded in Book No. 50, page 581, of the records of deeds of trust of said Grenada County; and said deed of trust being also filed for record in the office of the Chancery Clerk of Montgomery County, Mississippi, on the 8th day of July, 1921, and being duly recorded in deed of trust record 43, page 237, of the records of deeds of trust of said Montgomery County, upon the following lands, to-wit:

All that part of the East half of Section 13, Township 21, Range 5 East, lying East of South prong of Bogue Creek and South of East prong of Bogue Creek, 197 acres, more or less; Southwest Quarter and West half of Southeast Quarter of Section 18, Township 21, Range 6 East. And that part of Northwest Quarter South of East prong of Bogue Creek, 18 acres, more or less; and East half of West half of Northwest Quarter lying North of Bogue Creek, containing 38 acres, more or less, all in Section 18, Township 21, Range 6 East, Grenada County, Mississippi. And the following lands, to-wit: Northeast Quarter of Section 24, Township 21, Range 5 East, and Northwest Quarter and West half of Northeast Quarter of Section 19, Township 21, Range 6 East, in Montgomery County, Mississippi.

And whereas, a part of the indebtedness therein described has been transferred and assigned to Mrs. N. K. Penn, who is now the owner of said indebtedness, and whereas said indebtedness is now due and payable and default having been made in the payment of said indebtedness and the owner of said indebtedness having appointed in writing the undersigned as substituted trustee with the request that said lands be sold as prescribed in said trust deed, the appointment of the undersigned as trustee having been properly acknowledged and recorded in the deed records of said Grenada County, Mississippi, in Book 61, page 125; and also recorded in the deed records of said Montgomery County, Mississippi, in Book H, page 262. Now by virtue of the authority conferred upon the undersigned, he will, as substituted trustee, on the first Monday of July, being the 2nd day of said month, 1923, within legal hours, proceed to sell to the highest bidder for cash, in front of the Court house door at Grenada, in said Grenada County, the above described lands lying in said Grenada County, and he will on said day within legal hours proceed to sell to the highest bidder for cash, in front of the court house door at Winona, in said Montgomery County, the above described lands lying in said Montgomery County, for the purpose of paying the debt secured by said trust deed.

Witness my signature this the 4th day of June, 1923.

E. A. PENN,
Substituted Trustee.

Young Attorney Has Made Splendid Record in One Term Service

Kosciusko, Mississippi, March 7th, 1923.

TO THE VOTERS OF THE FIFTH JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF MISSISSIPPI:

We, the undersigned citizens of Kosciusko, Attala County, Mississippi, hereby desire to state to the voters of the Fifth Judicial District of the State of Mississippi, that we have known David E. Crawley for many years, and have watched him particularly during the three years that he has acted as District Attorney of this District.

We know him to be:

First. Eminently qualified to fill the position of District Attorney for this District.

Second. Absolutely fair, thorough and vigorous in all criminal prosecutions.

Third. That he shows no man favor because of the social position he holds, or because of the fact that he may be worth a large sum of money. To him every man looks alike regardless of who he is, or what he has.

Fourth. That he has honorably filled the position he now holds in this District, and has made an excellent officer.

Fifth. That he has fearlessly attempted to perform his duties, and has in every instance met with the approval of the best citizens of the District.

And we take great pleasure in indorsing his candidacy for re-election to this office that he now holds. Respectfully,

A. T. Cinnamond, Pastor First Baptist Church; W. A. Bowlin, Pastor Kosciusko Circuit; Olin Ray, Pastor Methodist Church; C. O. Groves, Pastor Presbyterian Church; H. T. HON. DAVID E. CRAWLEY.

The many friends and supporters of the gentleman whose name appears above will be gratified to note his announcement in today's paper for re-election to the office of District Attorney for this District.

Since the writer began to watch the proceedings of the Courts, having to do with the enforcement of the criminal laws of the State, we have never known an officer to discharge his duties with more ability and fidelity to his State and Country.

Perhaps no District Attorney ever had greater power over a jury or ever struck harder sledge hammer blows than he.

His single purpose seems to be to see the scales of Justice balance evenly, believing as he does in the enforcement of the laws, without fear or favor, and without passion or prejudice to the defendant. He is a forceful speaker, a hard fighter. He strikes hard but his aim is to deal justice at all times.

His friends feel that he is entitled to hold the position again and are confident of his election. They feel at this particular time when law enforcement is the great issue before the people of Mississippi that such a man is needed at the helm. They feel that we must have law and order in the Commonwealth if we are to be a happy and prosperous people.

It has been the custom of the American people since the foundation of the Government where a public official has served for only one term and where he has been faithful and efficient in the discharge of his duties, to give him at least a second term.

Mr. Crawley's friends feel that if ever a public servant has been faithful and efficient he has been and that he should have a second term and feel confident of his re-election.

FORD SETS NEW RECORD.

Moving steadily up to a 6,700-car-a-day production, the Ford Motor Co. on Monday, May 21, set a new daily record when 6,658 cars and trucks were completely assembled for domestic use, it is announced by the Ford News.

This new production mark exceeds by 43 the best previous day which was May 9, with its record of 6,615.

Since the first of the year all of the vast resources of the Ford Motor Company have been utilized to keep production on a continually increasing schedule, but orders all along have been far in excess of the output and continue to be, even under the present record-breaking output.

CALHOUN COUNTY.

In this week's Sentinel, we are carrying the advertisement of "Calhoun County, the Best Hill County in Mississippi," over the signature of the Calhoun County Chamber of Commerce.

Although we do not agree that Calhoun County is the best hill county in the State, we do believe that it is one of the best. It has thousands of acres of rich farm land, well drained, that are adaptable to almost any kind of crop and that have been producing remarkable yields of lespedeza, corn, cotton, peas, beans, etc. Calhoun has a fine sytem of roads and much money is being spent on roads now under construction. It has good schools, good churches and, above all, it has a splendid citizenship that is working in unison to bring Calhoun County to the forefront.

There is much matter in the advertisement that is of interest to the homeseeker and that contains information of value to those of us who reside in a neighboring county.

We hope that great good will result from the activities of the Calhoun County Chamber of Commerce, for what helps Calhoun will also benefit Grenada.

RICHARD DENMAN OF TALLAHATCHIE COUNTY.

Richard Denman of Tallahatchie County, who is seeking a re-election to the office of district attorney, has made an able, honest and fearless prosecutor and, regardless of any competitors and of the fact that that is not our judicial district, we are venturing the prophecy that he will be renominated. He ought to be renominated.

We have known Richard Denman since he was an infant. We knew his parents before him, and it gives us very great pleasure to bear testimony to the uprightness of his character and to his integrity of purpose.

He graduated with honor at college. He came home and entered upon the practice of law and was but a short while in forging to the front and in obtaining recognition as one of the leading legal lights of his county. He was chosen district attorney over some very able and worthy men and has justified everything claimed for him by his friends.

Richard Denman is a delightfully companionable man. He is clever, accommodating and easy of approach, and The Sentinel believes that the humblest man of his district can get his ear and attention when the occasion demands it. We hold him in high esteem and we hope the good people of his district will honor him with another term, and from what we hear there can hardly be any doubt about it.

WHO AND WHO ONLY IS DOING THAT?

Mike Conner is doing that very thing——

It is Mike Conner that it turning the Russell administration inside out and who is showing himself a political leader and statesman worthy of the confidence of the men and the women of the State.

Mike Conner is putting that bunch on the rack and is frying them to a fare-you-well for blackening the name of the State giving the people all the facts about how they have been betrayed and plundered, then is it not your duty to rally to his leadership?

He is making no sissy fight. He knows that in a race for Governor of Mississippi at the present time there is no room for dunghills. He is laying bare the record of the Russell administration. He is telling it from Dan to Beersheba, from Cape Cod to Kalamazoo, from Maine to California, from Yellow Rabbit to Vinegar Bend, from h—— to breakfast and yea, too, from the Insane Asylum to the very doors of the Governor's Mansion. He is not camouflaging or sidestepping. Mike Conner is walking right out into the center of the ring and giving that bunch a punch that sends them against the ropes at every clatter.

If you believe in the man who is fighting your battles, telling the truth, then you believe in Mike Conner's cause.

Of course, if you believe in a man tip-toeing around and "shooing" at Russell and all that ilk but never telling anything, then you want to vote for somebody else, other than Conner. He is a real man and is making a he fight. He is able. He is resourceful. He is discreet. He is honest: He has been tried and not even his worst enemies can point to one single doubtful thing in his public record. His private life has been clean and he is above reproach.

He is making a brave and courageous fight. As the campaign grows he is using bigger and heavier guns, and every time he fires, Franklin and Russell and cohorts draw up and get smaller and smaller. With Conner using the branding iron on them, we shall not be surprised to see them get so "swunk up" that they will feel that they can hide under a mustard seed and possibly ask to be covered up until after the primary with the testimony taken in the Insane Hospital scandal.

Go to it, Mike. You can't get the iron too hot or apply the brand too often for us. We enjoy seeing 'em walk in hot ashes. Take the hides off of them, but don't let them disfigure themselves so that it would be possible for them to appear under assumed names.

GARNER ASKS RE-ELECTION AS COMMISSIONER OF AGRICULTURE.

In our announcement column appears the name of P. P. Garner, the present Commissioner of Agriculture of Mississippi, who asks a re-election at the hands of the people of Mississippi.

If a wise, faithful, efficient and effective discharge of the duties of office entitle a man to the fair consideration of those he is serving, and to a re-election, then it would seem that P. P. Garner is certain of re-election.

He was reared on a farm in Noxubee County, and has never really got the farm out of his system or out of his character. He got such schooling as the country schools of that County afforded, and later attended the A. & M. College, where he graduated. After graduating at the A. & M. College, he attended Columbia University in New York where he made a splendid record. After his return to Mississippi, he engaged in sundry activities, and was later put to work by the agencies of the federal government as one of the special representatives of the agricultural department. When Hon. H. E. Blakeslee resigned as Commissioner, to accept the directorship of the Mississippi Centennial Exposition, Mr. Garner was named as his successor. He went to work at once in a common sense, industrious manner and has made a good officer. He has made no grand stand plays. He has attended to his own business and has not sought to make his office a political machine for himself or for any one else. He has endeavored to follow the law in administering the office; if it be said that he has erred in doing that, then it can truthfully be said that the error lies in the law and not in the administration of it.

To use the words coined by Gov. Cox, when making the race on the Democratic ticket for the presidency in 1920, when he promised, if elected, to name a "dirt farmer" commissioner of agriculture, Mr. Garner is a "dirt farmer." He has had the actual experience in actually working on the farm himself, and is today engaged in farming in a small way.

There are two other gentlemen in the race, Hon. J. S. Howerton of Lee County, who no doubt bases his hopes of election on his ability to coral the extreme Russell-Franklin-Bilbo vote. Mr. Howerton is an honest man, but enjoys the rather unique distinction of having filled three State positions at one time, that of membership in the lower house of the Legslature, sergeant on one of the penitentiary farms and membership on the general board of trustees of the colleges, and for the past four years has been filling and is today filling the last two named places. The other gentleman in the race, Prof. Holton, does not appear to have impressed the public that he is really in earnest about his candidacy.

P. P. Garner is an honest, sincere, candid man. He is without frills. What he says he means to do. He stands for that which is highest and best in the welfare of the State. There is no deception or double-dealing about him. If re-elected, he ought to make a better officer than he has during the past four years. Every State in the Union has a Commissioner of Agriculture, and there is no State that is more purely agricultural than Mississippi, hence it would appear worse than idle to attempt to argue the neccessity and the importance of the office.

With Mr. Garner's equipment and with his experience and with his unassailable record for honesty and for integrity, it would seem that there can be no question about his being the best fitted man to serve the State of Mississippi during the next four years.

Mike Conner has never broken his gait since the campaign opened, and as he is making the turn for the last lap, he is mending his gait and starting down the home stretch several paces ahead of his four competitors. Those in the grand stand are beggining to stand on tip toe and are clapping for him as

Inactive Liver

"I have had trouble with an inactive liver," wrote Mrs. S. Nichols, of 4412 Spencer St., Houston, Texas. "When I would get constipated, I would feel a light, dizzy feeling in my head. To get up in the morning with a lightness in the head and a trembly feeling is often a sign that the stomach is out of order. For this I took Thedford's Black-Draught, and without a doubt can say I have never found its equal in any liver medicine. It not only cleans the liver, but leaves you in such a good condition. I have used it a long time, when food does not seem to set well, or the stomach is a little sour."

If it isn't Thedford's it isn't BLACK-DRAUGHT Liver Medicine.

LESSON FOR JUNE 17

ESTHER, THE PATRIOT QUEEN

LESSON TEXT—Esther 4:13-5:3.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"—Esther 4:14.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Esther, the Brave Queen.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What Esther Did for Her People.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Esther's Heroism.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A study of Patriotism.

I. Esther Made Queen (Chapters 1, 2).

This drama took place in the Persian court, where Ahasuerus (Xerxes) sat upon his throne, surrounded by his princes and servants. Six months of festivity were drawing to a close, arranged by the king in order to impress upon the people of his mighty empire the fact of his greatness. The last days of this feast were marked with drunken debauchery. In a drunken frenzy the king commanded Vashti to come before the people to display her beauty. Vashti showed her independence by refusing to obey. She was instantly deposed. In providing a queen to take her place, the most beautiful maidens in the empire were brought together from whom the king might make a selection. The choice fell upon Esther, a maid of the Jewish captivity. The king did not know that she was a Jewess, but God knew, and He put her there for a purpose.

II. Haman's Plot Against the Jews (Chapter 3).

1. The Occasion of (vv. 1-6). For some reason Haman was given chief place over the princes. Though all bowed before him, Mordecai, Esther's cousin, stoutly refused to do so.

2. Its Nature (vv. 7-15). Haman desired to lay hands upon Mordecai for his insubordination, but hesitated. Instead of such drastic action he laid a plot to destroy all the Jews, and thereby take vengeance on Mordecai, who he learned was a Jew. He made the king believe that the Jews were an unprofitable people and induced him to order their annihilation, promising to bring into the royal treasury an enormous sum of money.

III. Haman's Plot Foiled (4:1-8:14).

1. Fasting Among the Jews (4:1-3). When Mordecai and his people perceived all that was done they put on sackcloth and ashes and cried to God.

2. Mordecai's Charge to Esther (4:4-14). He sent to Esther a copy of the decree and charged her to go before the king and make supplication for her people. Esther pointed out the difficulties in the way. Possible death awaited her should her uninvited presence not meet the approval of the king.

3. Esther's Daring Adventure (4:16-5:2). Mordecai pointed out to her that her own life was endangered. She might meet death by venturing into the king's presence. She would surely meet death were Haman's plot not foiled. When thus brought face to face with duty, the heroism which so frequently has characterized her race moved her to undertake the hazardous task and prayerfully carry it out. After three days of fasting and prayer she put on her royal apparel and stood in the king's court, winning his approval.

4. Esther Pleading for Her People (5:3-7:6). Esther knew that an easy way to the heart of the king was through his stomach, so she invited him and Haman to a banquet. She proposed a second banquet, at which she planned to make her request known. During the interval some strange things took place. A gallows was built upon which to hang Mordecai, at the heartless suggestion of Haman's wife. And the king, during a sleepless night, was moved to search the court records, where he found that Mordecai had not been rewarded for saving his life. So, in order to express his appreciation for this act of heroism on the part of Mordecai, he gave orders obliging Haman to do honor to the one he was preparing to hang. At the second banquet Esther pointed out Haman's wicked plot to kill the Jews and asked of the king that her people be saved. In his wrath the king ordered Haman hanged on the gallows which had been prepared for Mordecai.

5. The Counter Decree Issued (8:5-14). The original decree could not be reversed, so a counter decree was issued which enabled the Jews to defend themselves. This was dispatched to the furthest parts of the kingdom. At the appointed time there was great slaughter and the Jews were saved. God granted relief and the Feast of Purim was instituted as a memorial of their deliverance.

LESSON FOR JUNE 24

REVIEW

Great Men and Women of the Old Testament—Devotional Reading, Psalm 99.

GOLDEN TEXT—"Seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us."—Heb. 12:1.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Favorite Stories of the Quarter.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Favorite Heroes and Heroines of the Quarter.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Some Great Characters of the Old Testament.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Lessons for Today From the Lives of Old Testament Characters.

Three methods are suggested. The first method is taken from Crannell's Pocket Lessons. The general subject is, "What Twenty Centuries Teach the Twentieth."

I. The Lesson of Vision.
1. Abraham, the Pioneer— Lesson 2.
2. Moses, the Nation Builder—Lesson 4.
3. Isaiah, the Kingdom Seer—Lesson 9.

II. The Lesson of Leadership.
1. Samuel, the Foundation Layer—Lesson 6.
2. David, the Solidifier—Lesson 7.
3. Nehemiah, the Rebuilder—Lesson 11.

III. The Lesson of Courage.
1. Elijah, the Reformer—Lesson 8.
2. Jeremiah, the Truth Teller—Lesson 10.
3. Esther, the Intercessor — Lesson 12.

IV. The Lesson of Character.
1. Ruth, the Woman Who Clave—Lesson 5.
2. Joseph, the Son Who Remembered—Lesson 3.

V. The Lesson of Life.
Jesus, the Summit of the Old Testament, Foundation of the New, Life of Both—Lesson 1.

The second method — Character Study. The different characters can be assigned the week before, upon which the pupils are to bring a brief essay or report giving a sketch of the particular hero.

A third method is to give a brief summary of each lesson.

Lesson 1—The truth concerning the risen Christ is the answer for all our questions and the impulse of our testimony to others.

Lesson 2—Abraham in obedience to the call of God went out not knowing whither he went. He so completely trusted God that he was willing to go all the way with Him.

Lesson 3—Though Joseph was sold into slavery because of the hatred of his brethren, God exalted him to a place of power in Egypt.

Lesson 4—Even though Pharaoh's decree was for the destruction of all the male children of the Hebrews, Moses was preserved and educated in the Egyptian court.

Lesson 5—When Ruth became acquainted with the true God, she chose to turn her back upon her native land and kindred and identify herself with God's people.

Lesson 6—Samuel was given in answer to his mother's prayer. In early boyhood his mother gave him back to the Lord.

Lesson 7—When Samuel went to anoint a new king over Israel, he had all the sons of Jesse pass before him. Although to human eyes the eldest seemed fitted to be a king, and although outer appearances were favorable, the inner reality as seen by God was against him.

Lesson 8—Elijah threw down to the people a ringing challenge, calling upon the people to decide between Baal and the Lord. The God who answered by fire was to be the true God.

Lesson 9—Upon the sight of the Lord, Isaiah was convicted of his sin. When cleansed by fire from the divine altar he heard and responded to the call of God.

Lesson 10—Jeremiah, for his faithfulness in making known the Word of the Lord, was most bitterly hated and persecuted. Though he was regarded as a traitor and put into the place of death, he remained faithful to God.

Lesson 11—When Nehemiah heard of the distress of his brethren in Jerusalem, he was moved with pity for them. Although he enjoyed prosperity, he grieved over the grave distress of his people.

Lesson 12—In the providence of God, Esther came to be queen of Persia at an opportune time to save her people. There is a definite place and purpose in every life.

Life-Force.

Life-force, which is another name for God, seeks ever for new outlets; it breaks through mind into something higher still.—G. A. Studdert Kennedy.

The Art of Pleasing.

The art of pleasing consists in being pleased. To be amiable is to be satisfied with one's self and others.—Hazlitt.

Banish Self-Conceit.

The first business of a philosopher is to part with self-conceit.—Epictetus.

WHITFIELD ASKS POINTED QUESTIONS

Scores Lax Business Methods.

Tunica, Miss., June 12.—Henry L. Whitfield, candidate for governor, speaking before a large audience here tonight said:

"From the printed speech recently delivered by my friend Conner at Canton and circulated widely by him, I find the following statement:

" 'My good friend Professor Whitfield made an unwarranted attack on me, saying that your high taxes are the result of the extravagant appropriations of the legislature of which I was a member. He said that I am one of the four men responsible for high taxes.'

Differ on Business Policy.

"I made no such charge against Mr. Conner. I merely stated in discussing the financial condition of the state that Mr. Conner was one of four men, who, during the last eight years, could have prevented the deficit of over five million dollars for current expenses. Does Mr. Conner deny this statement? Was he not the presiding officer of the house during these years? Did he not appoint the committees that passed on all appropriations? I do not charge that Mr. Conner acted in bad faith. On the contrary, I am sure that he acted from the highest patriotic motives. We simply differ on public business policy .

A Record of Economy.

"My friend further charges that I have been a "beneficiary" of high taxes. If he had examined the record he would have easily found that for the entire time I was State Superintendent of Education I received only $2,000 per year, which is less than one-half of the present salary of that office. In my early days as president of the college at Columbus, when the State was passing through one of the times of stress, as it is now, and it was necessary for the appropriations committee of the legislature to reduce appropriations, I voluntarily went before the committee and asked that my salary be reduced. I respectfully furnish the name of Hon. A. Johnson, of Shubuta, then chairman of the committee, for verification of this statement. I want my friend to know that in preparing the college bill, after my salary had been reduced $1,000.00, I kept a rider in the bill which prevented the Board of Trustees from raising this small salary. My salary could not be raised by the Board, when the salaries of other presidents of state institutions were, because of the inhibition put in the act by myself. I not only take pride in the fact that I have not personally profited in any way from excessive salaries, or otherwise, but I tried to conduct Mississippi State College for Women on the strictest financial basis. The record will show that this institution was conducted on a basis of slightly more than one-half per capita than it cost to operate the other white colleges of the state and that by an economical administration a deficit of $13,000.00 was overcome. At the same time the graduating classes were raised from about twenty to one hundred and seventy-five.

Business Methods Needed.

"I also desire to say in this connection that I have never stated in private nor expressed in my public speeches that I was in favor of high taxes. I did state in a short speech delivered before the State Chamber of Commerce in Jackson that we have issued millions of dollars in bonds for our various improvement projects, that the principal and interest will have to be paid by taxation, and that the only way a citizen could avoid the payment of these taxes would be for him to go to Africa or some other distant place. Pay day is here and we will have to meet our problems in a business-like way or face disaster.

"I welcome the investigation of past records by the fair-minded, truth-seeking electorate of Mississippi." Adv.

Sandy laughed joyously. The smile was in his eyes now.

"If I figger a man's throwin' a bluff," he said, "I usually figger to call him, not to chew about it. Now, I'm talkin'. These claims are duly registered in the name of Patrick Casey, his heirs an' assign. Here's the papers. The assessment work is all done. Pat's daughter owns 'em now. We're representin' her. An' I'm servin' you notice to quit. We'll take the same two minutes you was talkin' of. Then staht yore li'l demonstration, gents, providin' I don't beat you to it." He started to roll a cigarette with hands skillful and steady. Back of him Sam and Mormon stood like dogs on point, watchful, unmoving, but instinct with suppressed motion.

The Quickness of the Hand Deceives the Eye.

"The girl may be his heir," said the man who had spoken, "but Plimsoll is assignee. Plimsoll staked him an' these claims are half his."

"So J. P. was hirin' you to do his dirty work," said Sandy, his voice cold with contempt. "You go back to him, the whole lousy pack of you an' tell him from me he's a yellow-spined liar. Git! Take yore stuff with you or send back fo' it. Now, git off this property."

If a man can make movements with his hands so swiftly that they are covered in less than a tenth of a second, ordinary human sight cannot register them. He has achieved the magician's slogan—the quickness of the hand deceives the eye. It takes natural aptitude and long practice, whether one is juggling gilded balls or blued-steel revolvers. Sandy could, with a circling movement of his wrists, draw his guns from their holsters and bring them to bear directly upon the target to which his eyes shifted. Glance, twist of wrist, arrest of motion, pressure of finger, all co-ordinated. One moment his hands were empty, his glance carelessly contemptuous, the veriest movement of a split-second stop-watch and the gun in his right hand spat fire, the gun in his left swung in an arc that menaced the five card players.

The other two were struggling beneath the crumpled folds of a collapsed tent, wriggling frantically like the stage hands who simulate waves by crawling beneath painted canvas. Sandy had shattered the pegs that held up the upper corners of the tent on the slope, had cut the cords of the remaining guys on that side and the structure had swayed and collapsed.

Sam and Mormon had lined up now with Sandy. There was no mistaking their intention to use their guns. But the exhibition had been quite sufficient. With one accord the men raised their hands shoulder high and began to shuffle down the hill, regardless of their equipment, which, having been paid for by Plimsoll, they regarded as of much less value than the necessity for departure.

"Scattered like a bunch of coyotes," said Sam.

"Sure did," agreed Sandy. "Minute they stahted talkin', 'stead of shootin', I knew they was ready to stampede. They'll beat it to Plimsoll an' we'll see jest how much sand he's got in his craw."

"Think Plim'll show?" asked Sam.

"Got to—or quit," said Sandy. "That bunch of jumpers he got together'll spill the beans unless he makes some play. Let's take a pasear an' look at Casey's workings."

Patrick Casey had run in a tunnel from the face of his discovery. Its mouth had been closed by timbers fitting closely into the frame of the horizontal shaft, forming, not so much a door, as a barricade, that had been firmly spiked to heavy timbers. This had been recently dismantled and then replaced, as recent marks on the weathered lumber showed. Sandy looked at these places closely, frowning as he gave his verdict.

"Some one monkeyin' with this inside of the last month," he announced. "Like as not it was that bunch of Easterners. They'd figger the camp was abandoned an' consider themselves justified as philanthropists into bu'stin' open anything that looked good—like this tunnel. Yes, sir," Sandy went on, warming to his own theory, "it w'udn't surprise me if this warn't the mine they sampled which Plimsoll finds out is the real stuff an' clamps on."

"Well," said Mormon, "we'll have a chance to ask him in a minute. He's comin' up with that crowd of his rangin' erlong an' their ha'r liftin'."

The three partners met the jumpers, now headed by Plimsoll, on the border of the claims. The gambler's face was livid. "You four-flushers get off this ground," he blustered. "You're claiming to represent Molly Casey's rights after you've kidnaped the girl and sent her out of the state. It won't get you anywhere or anything. I've got a half interest in these claims and I've plenty of witnesses to prove it."

"I don't believe yore witnesses are half as vallyble as they might have been before politics shifted in Herefo'd county," said Sandy. "You ain't got a written contract an' it w'udn't do you a mite of good if you had, fur as I'm concerned. Because I've been duly an' legally app'inted guardeen to Casey's daughter Molly an' I'm here to represent her interests, likewise mine. I've got my guardianship papers right with me."

"A h—l of a lot of good they'll do you in this camp," sneered Plimsoll. "Representin' her interests. I'll say you are, an' your own along with 'em." A laugh from his followers heartened him. "If the camp ever hears the yarn of your running off with the girl and now, with her tucked away, coming back to clean up, I've a notion they'd show you four-flushers where you've sat in to the wrong game. Why . . ."

Something in Sandy's face stopped him. It became suddenly devoid of all expression, became a thing of stone out of which blazed two gray eyes and a voice issued from lips that barely moved.

"I've got a notion, too, Plimsoll. A notion that it 'ud be a good day's work to shoot you fo' a foul-mouthed, lyin', stealin' crook! You've called me a fo'-flusher twice, an' the on'y way to prove a fo'-flusher is to call fo' a showdown. I'm doin' it."

The words came cold and even, backed by a grim earnestness that imprinted itself on the lesser manhood of the jumpers as a finger leaves its print in clay. They shifted back a little from Plimsoll, circling out as they might have moved from a man marked by pestilence. He stood trying to outface Sandy, to keep his eyes steady.

"You pack yore gun under yore coat-flap," said Sandy. "I don't know how quick you can draw but I aim to find out."

He handed one of his own guns to Mormon, announcing his action lest Plimsoll might mistake it.

"Now, then," he went on, "I once told you I looked to you to [illegible] gossip about Molly Casey [illegible] Butch Parsons an' Sim Hahn got hubt. You don't seem able to sabe plain talk an' I'm tired of talkin' to you, Jim Plimsoll. Me, I'm goin' to roll me a cigarette. Any time you want to you can draw. I'm givin' you the aidge on me. If you don't take that aidge, Jim Plimsoll, I'm givin' you till sun-up termorrer mornin' to git plumb out of camp. An' to keep driftin'."

Deliberately Sandy took tobacco sack and papers from the pocket of his shirt, his fingers functioning automatically, precisely, his eyes never shifting from Plimsoll's face, measuring by feel the amount of tobacco shaken into the little trough of brown paper.

The group gazed at him fascinated. Plimsoll's face beaded with tiny drops of sweat, his hands moved slowly upward toward his coat lapels, touched them as Sandy twisted the end of the cigarette, stayed there, shaking slightly with what might have been eagerness—or paralysis. For the look in the steel-gray eyes of Sandy Bourke, half mocking, all confident, spurred the doubts that surged through the gambler's chance-calculating mind, while he knew that every atom of hesitation lessened his chances.

His own hands were close to his chest. His right had but a few inches to dart, to drag the automatic from its smooth holster. Sandy's hands were high above his belt, rolling the cigarette. They had four times as far to go. However, Plimsoll knew that if anything went wrong with his performance, if he failed to kill outright, that nothing would go wrong with Sandy's shooting. But—if he did not take his chance and, failing it, did not leave camp. . . .

"Gimme a match, Sam." Sandy's voice came to Plimsoll across a gulf that could never be bridged. He watched the flame, pale in the sunshine, watched it lift to the cigarette and then a puff of smoke came into his face as Sandy flung away the burnt stick and turned on his heel. Murder stirred dully in Plimsoll's brain at the sneers he surmised rather than read on the faces of his followers. His defeat was also theirs. But the moment had gone. He knew he lacked the nerve. Sandy knew it and had turned his back on him.

His prestige was gone. His boon companions would talk about it. Mormon gave Sandy back his second gun and Sandy slid it into the holster. He exhaled the last puff of his cigarette before he spoke again to Plimsoll.

"Sun-up, ter-morrer. You can send fo' yore stuff here any time you've a mind to. Fo' a gamblin' man, Plimsoll, you're a d—d pore judge of a hand."

Plimsoll strode off down the hill alone. The men who had come with him hesitated and then crossed the gulch. They had severed connections with the J. P. brand for the time, at least. The three partners walked back toward the tunnel.

"We got to stay on the claims," said Sam. "If they happened to think of it they might heave a stick of dynamite in our midst afteh it's good an' dahk. A flyin' chunk of dynamite is a nasty thing to dodge, at that."

"I don't think it likely, Sam. Camp knows, or will know, what's been happenin'. If dynamite was thrown they'd sabe who did it an' I don't believe the crowd 'ud stand for it. I w'udn't wonder if Jim Plimsoll forgets to send fo' that tent an' stuff of his. Hope he does."

"What do we want with it?" demanded Mormon.

"Nothin', with the stuff. We'll set it out beyond the lines come dusk. But the tent'll come in handy. We didn't bring one erlong."

"You don't aim fo' us to sleep in it, do you?" asked Mormon.

"Don't believe we'd rest well if we tackled it. But it mightn't be a bad scheme if we give the gen'ral idee that we are sleepin' in it. I put a lantern in the car when we stahted. Fetch that erlong too, will you, Mormon?"

It was late afternoon before Mormon reappeared, bearing a camp outfit, part of which was carried by Westlake. Sandy and Sam had repitched the tent on fairly level ground of the valley bottom. Mormon's eyebrows went up at the location with which Sandy and Sam, seated cross-legged on the ground, one smoking, the other draining low harmonies through his mouth organ, appeared perfectly satisfied.

"Why on the flat?" asked Mormon. "There's a heap of cover round here where they might snake up afteh dahk an' sling anythin' they minded to at us, from lead to giant powdeh!"

"Wal," drawled Sandy, flicking the ash from his cigarette, "it's handy to watch, fo' one thing, an' yore right about that coveh, Mormon. That's why we chose it."

Mormon sat down his load and took off his hat to scratch his head perplexedly. Then his face lightened as he looked up-hill.

"You figger on settin' the lantern in here afteh dahk," he said. "An' watchin' the fun from the tunnel."

"Pritty close, Mormon. Come inside, you an' Westlake, an' I'll show you suthin'."

They followed him into the tent and came out again laughing.

CARD OF THANKS.

The going away of our husband, father and brother, W. C. Thomas, only a few days ago in Memphis, makes us feel that we should say to our friends and others in Grenada who were always kind to us and interested in him that we are grateful for every Christian word and for the many expressions of sympathy since he answered the final summons. May God bless each and all.

Very truly,

Mrs. Myrtle Thomas, W. G. Jr., G. E., J. R., H. D., J. E. and Clifford Thomas and Miss Cora, W. G. Sr., and C. E. Thomas.

A TWICE-TOLD TALE

One of Interest to Our Readers.

Good news bears repeating, and when it is confirmed after a long lapse of time, even if we hesitate to believe it at first hearing, we feel secure in accepting its truth now. The following experience of a Grenada woman is confirmed after three years.

Mrs. E. T. Sweeney, 18 College Ave., says: "I was weak, nervous and run down generally and I suffered from backache. Being on my feet all day while doing my housework, I blame for the trouble. At times I would get dizzy and when making the beds, as I would rise up, I could see all kinds of stars before me. My kidneys acted irregularly, at times. I read about Doan's Kidney Pills being good so I purchased a box at Fatherree's Drug Store. After I had used them for a few days I was all right. I continued taking Doan's until I was well and I am glad to recommend them." (Statement given June 13, 1918).

On April 13, 1922, Mrs. Sweeney added: "Since using and recommending Doan's Kidney Pills in 1918 I am sure my cure has been a lasting one and I haven't had to use them since."
